Become a LivingWorks trainer in your community to keep people safe from suicide

Why is training in suicide intervention important?
Suicide intervention training saves lives.

Most people thinking about suicide don’t actually want to die - but they need someone who can help them find the support they need and to stay safe.

Everyone has a part to play, and research has shown that virtually anyone can learn the skills to become a suicide intervention caregiver.

LivingWorks is a world leader in suicide intervention training. They are looking to identify the future suicide intervention trainers in our community. Once trained, these community members will work with LivingWorks to deliver LivingWorks training models into the future.

What Training for Trainers (T4T) is on offer?
The opportunity is to be trained up to be able to deliver either:

1. safeTALK
   Begin learning how to effectively present the half-day safeTALK workshop, a suicide alertness training program
   Training time commitment: 2 days, face-to-face*

2. ASIST
   Begin learning how to effectively present the two-day ASIST workshop and bring life-saving intervention skills to your own organisations and communities
   Training time commitment: 5 days, face-to-face*

If you have any questions about which T4T option is best for you, please get in touch with Renee Tsatsis: renee.tsatsis@livingworks.com.au to discuss.

*Due to COVID-19, face to face workshops have been postponed until further notice.
What are the criteria for T4T candidates?
- You have completed an ASIST workshop in the previous 24 months. If not, please contact Renee Tsatsis (renee.tsatsis@livingworks.com.au) to find out about upcoming opportunities to attend ASIST.
- You are a skilled presenter with sound facilitation skills.
- You are committed to promoting suicide safety through open and direct discussion.
- You are proficient with PowerPoint.
- You understand the time commitments following a T4T to prepare for and deliver workshops.

Please think about your capacity alongside your personal and professional life before submitting your EOI for T4T courses.

Where and when will T4T’s take place?
Due to COVID-19, face to face training has been postponed. LivingWorks will advise of new dates once they become available.

Can I do more than one T4T?
Yes! You can. But you need to think about your capacity alongside your personal and professional life. A requirement to be eligible to attend a funded T4T position is that you have capacity to deliver the workshops in your community for at least 12 months as part of the funded project.

I’m interested in the LivingWorks T4T courses. How do I find out more or book a place?
To find out more about safeTALK and ASIST T4Ts, visit the LivingWorks website at http://www.livingworks.com.au/training-and-trainers/become-a-trainer/.

A formal expression of interest process will be conducted for both safeTALK and ASIST T4T courses. Register your expression of interest by emailing your details to Renee Tsatsis at renee.tsatsis@livingworks.com.au.

A limited number of new trainers will be recruited due to the funding amount. It is not guaranteed that EOI submissions will be successful.
